

Problem 5 (20 marks)

In Lithuanian<sup>5</sup> nouns the accent may move according to the number and the case of the nouns, i.e., different syllables may be accented in different forms of the same word. The pattern of accent movement is called the accent paradigm of the noun.

There are two types of syllables in Lithuanian. If a syllable of the first type is accented, that syllable has falling intonation marked «´», e.g.: ie, ó, ál. If a syllable of the second type is accented, that syllable has rising intonation marked «~», e.g.: aĩ, õ, iẽ.

Within the same root or the same ending, the syllable type always remains the same. For example, the root liep, when accented, always has falling intonation, whereas the ending of the Nominative Plural os always has rising intonation.

The following examples illustrate the four main types of Lithuanian accent paradigms (they look somewhat different in modern Lithuanian, but this is irrelevant for the problem):

Paradigm	1	2	3	4
Example	linden	hand	head	winter
Nom. Sg.	liepo	rankó	galvó	žiemó
Gen. Sg.	liepos	raĩkos	galvõs	žiemõs
Nom. Pl.	liepos	raĩkos	gálvos	žiẽmos
Acc. Pl.	liepaNs	rankáNs	gálvaNs	žiemáNs

In the late 19th century, the great Swiss linguist Ferdinand de Saussure studied the accent paradigms of Lithuanian nouns and came to the conclusion that at an earlier stage of the development of Lithuanian there were not four, but only two accent paradigms. Later, as a result of a specific rule, which is now known as Saussure's Law, the accent moved under certain conditions, and each paradigm split in two.

Assignment 1. Determine which accent paradigms originally belonged together.

Assignment 2. Determine what the initial accent paradigms looked like.

Assignment 3. Formulate Saussure's Law.

Note. ž is a specific Lithuanian consonant, N shows a specific (nasal) pronunciation of the preceding vowel.

Good luck!
